The record books are full of great film trivia, but we usually only hear about awards and gossip about the stars. I like the gossip, but what about the film trivia we aren't told about? Some film records are much more interesting. For example, did you know that Robert Downey Jr. was paid more than any other actor for his role as Iron Man in the Avengers films (the huge sum of eighty million US dollars)? And I bet you can't guess which film has the record for the most tickets sold. I was amazed! Well, apparently more cinema tickets were sold for Gone with the Wind, a 1930s romance, than for any other film. I haven't even seen it but it sounds terrible! The classic science fiction film Star Wars comes a close second, and I'm sure that it's a much better movie.

One truly unbelievable film record was set by a man called Ashish Sharma in Mathura, India, in 2008. He sat in a cinema and watched films for an incredible 120 hours and twenty-three minutes – that's forty-eight films in total. As for the longest film ever made, a Swedish director is working on one at the moment that will be 720 hours – or thirty days – long. I don't know what genre it is – maybe all genres! Not even Mr Sharma will be able to watch all of that in one go!

Another film-related record from India is about the world's largest film poster. It was made to advertise India's biggest action film of 2015, Bāhubali. The size of it is extraordinary! At nearly 5,000 square metres, it's more than half the size of a professional football pitch! It wasn't made in the usual way. It was designed by the film's director S. S. Rajamouli and it was made by a team of thirty people who worked around the clock for three days.

It seems that I could spend a lifetime researching film records – there's so much to find out! Next, I'm going to take a look at special effects. It's really clever how some effects are made. I wonder what the best ever special effects were ... ?
